PRE epic fits

Limited Edition Metal Box CD / CD

Born in a basement, based in London, the first outing of PRE had the entire audience locked outside, watching through barred windows from above. To the assemblage up top, it was clear that these five noise sprinkled nu-wavers had already figured it out - sound moves quicker in high pressure.

In the months that followed, PRE's rhythmically infectious skip-alongs were demonstrated on a flurry of releases. The band's debut 7" EP "Treasure Trails" caught ears by surprise and wouldn't let go. A rash of vinyl came in quick succession, pairing the band up with acts like AIDS Wolf, Dmonstrations, Bardo Pond, and Comanечи. And most bizarrely, just last month a bootleg vinyl 7" of PRE and AIDS Wolf recordings was seized by Skin Graft Records for lawful distribution. Packaged in a calendar sleeve of compromising band photos, the record is moving at high velocity in collector's circles, only adding to PRE's ascending allure.

And now, weighing 14 songs and coming in just over 20 minutes tall, "Epic Fits" will be born on September 4th. Recorded in a chilly pizza storage unit with Westminster Brown at the controls, PRE's full length is cold sweat caught on two inch tape. Those initial moonbeams shining through the barred basement windows have been caught - meticulously sliced and diced - and reflected back in a brilliant, buoyant strobelight. Guitar, bass, bass, drum and moon shriek: PRE make the noise jump.

PRESS QUOTES

"Gonzo punkers PRE are well on their way to superstardom. Like Karen O on a cocktail of narcotics, crazy lead singer Keeks Matsuura screeches alongside messy metal guitars with an energy that'd make duracell proud." – NME

"Akiko only wears underwear on stage. When she comes on at first, she seems a little vulnerable in her minimal clothing., but then she starts singing and explodes. Even if you don't fancy girls, like me, it's still really cute to see a small Asian girl dance around in her undies and scream". – Rock On London
